RESIDENT PROFILE

Manuel “Manny” Polit was born in Boston in May of 1911. He was one of 12 children, with eight brothers and three sisters. Manny’s father was the eighteenth licensed plumber in Massachusetts, while his mother owned and operated Polit Apparel Shop located on Temple Place in downtown Boston. Manny grew up in Dorchester and graduated from Dorchester High School.

After high school he worked for a time in the movie theater business. Manny later worked for the Mutual of Omaha Company, and was very successful in the insurance industry.

Manny met his wife, Davida, on a blind date at the Cohasset Yacht Club. The couple later married and had a son, Stephen. The Polit family lived for many years in Brookline. Manny and Stephen loved riding horses and Stephen enjoyed riding competitively. Stephen and his wife have one son, Jonathon, and they live just a short distance from Neville Place. Stephen is a frequent visitor! Manny enjoys these visits from his son, as well as his many discussions with Executive Director Jamie McWilliam.

STARRY NIGHTS CONCERT

Tony Rarus entertained us with old favorites and a pretty good imitation of the famous "Louis Armstrong" on a beautiful night in late July. We were joined by many residents of Neville Center Nursing and Rehab, which is located on the same property as Neville Place.

WEDDINGS UNVEILED

Early in July, residents of Neville Place learned about the history behind wedding traditions and superstitions from Pat Perry of Sneak Peek Productions.
