RESIDENT PROFILE

Ingolf "Mel" Melberg was born in Hartford, Connecticut to Danish-born parents. He had one brother and they spoke Danish at home and English outside of the home. In 1929, at the beginning of the Great Depression, Mel, his brother, and his mother went to live in Denmark while his father stayed in America to work. When Mel returned to the U.S., he no longer could speak and understand English, but after a short time in the Cambridge schools, his English improved.

Mel graduated from Somerville High School and went to work for Pratt & Whitney, but he was soon drafted and went into the United States Navy. He was in the Navy for three years and came home after the war, but after a year he reenlisted and spent the next five years there. He met his wife Edie through family friends. Mel and Edie, who is also of Danish descent, married and settled in Cambridge and Somerville. They have two children and many grandchildren. Edie now resides at our sister facility, Neville Center, just a few steps from our front door. Mel has lunch almost every day with Edie when the weather permits, and visits after dinner during the spring and summer months.
